The Gillett Entertainment Group and Live Nation announced today that British singer-songwriter David Gray's Draw The Line 2010 Tour will make a stop at the Halifax Metro Centre Theatre on Friday, May 28.

David Gray is not one to rest on his laurels; 12 million album sales, the best selling album in Ireland ever with 'White Ladder', a BAFTA nomination for his soundtrack work on Amma Assante's 2004 film 'A Way Of Life'. Two Ivor Novellos, a Q award, two Brit nominations, and a Grammy nomination.

It's wise not to mistake this artist's quiet and subtle approach for a lack of power. Indeed, it adds to the mystery of the songs, which are as much about a spiritual journey as a romantic one. On his recordings and especially live, Gray lays himself bare and, in the process, reveals himself to be one of our most gifted and affecting artists, a genius of melody and lyrical detail that can both melt and repair hearts.

Live, Gray's appearances leave audiences stunned, as though they have been battered by an emotional storm.
